

A Comprehensive Response to Climate Change Radical Solutions for Australia's Environmental Crisis

Presented by FutureWorld Eco-Technology Centre as part of Sustainability Week 2007

Monday April 16, 2007, 6.30pm
University of Wollongong - University Hall

Professor Ian Lowe AO will outline necessary action by government, business, industry and the community to achieve a dramatic transformation, not just in technological capacity but also in our approach to the natural world and each other.

Professor Lowe is an Emeritus Professor of Brisbane's Griffith University and President of the Australian Conservation Foundation.

He directed the Commission for the Future and was named Humanist of the Year in 1988 and chaired the Advisory Council that produced the first report on the State of the Australian Environment in 1996.

In 2000 Ian received the Queensland Premier's Millennium Award for Excellence in Science and the Australian Prime Minister's Award for Outstanding Individual Achievement and in 2002 the Eureka Prize for promotion of science and technology.

He has been a consultant to all three levels of government as well as companies and peak organizations in the private sector.

He wrote a weekly column for New Scientist for thirteen years, has written more than eighteen books and made countless contributions to radio, press and television and scientific and environmental conferences.

Professor Lowe has been a referee for the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, attended the Geneva and Kyoto Conferences of the parties to the Framework Convention on Climate Change and was on the Steering Committee for the UNEP Global Environmental Outlook.

Date: Monday April 16 2007

Time: 6.30pm - 9.00pm

Cost: $20 per person, $10 concession. Payable at the door via cash or cheque.

Please call 4226 9147 for credit card payments.

Venue: The University Hall, University of Wollongong. Northfields Avenue, Keiraville.
(Location and parking info: <http://www.uow.edu.au/about/maps.html>)

RSVP: Space is limited so please RSVP by COB Wednesday April 4, 2007

Email: ftworld@bigpond.net.au

Phone: 02 4226 9147

Fax: 02 4226 9130

Light refreshments will be served